Supreme Court Denies Hartford Bank New Hearing

HOLDS STATE TAXATION OF STOCK VALID

Upholds Conviction of Shields for Assault in Boscobel Klan Parade

RICHTER IS DISBARRED
Milwaukee Attorney Ousted Because of Illegal Dealings With Housekeeper

By Associated Press
Madison — The Wisconsin supreme court Monday denied a motion for rehearing in the Hartford bank case. The decision sustains the court's former opinion, holding the present system of taxing national banks in Wisconsin to be constitutional and valid. Conviction of George Shields, former right watchman at Boscobel, on a charge of assault in connection with a Ku Klux Klan parade last August, was upheld by the supreme court. Arthur W. Richter, Milwaukee attorney, was disbarred by the supreme court.

APPEAL BANK CASE
Upon the final outcome of the Hartford bank case in the Wisconsin supreme court rested the decision whether it would be carried to the United States supreme court, counsel for the First National Bank of Hartford asserted.

Attorneys for the bank asked the state tribunal for a rehearing of the case, in which four of the seven members of the court rendered a majority opinion upholding the collection of more than $2,000 in taxes by the city of Hartford, after the circuit court ruled that the taxes were collected illegally.

The taxes were assessed on the bank's stock on an ad valorem basis under the state law, the bank contending that such taxation was in violation of the federal laws providing that national bank stock should not be taxed at a higher rate than other moneyed capital in the state. Under the Wisconsin income tax law, all forms of monetary credits such as mortgages and securities were exempted from taxation. The cities argued that the stock of other banks was the only moneyed capital in competition with the national bank stock, while the banks contended that mortgages and other forms of investments also were competing forms of moneyed capital.

The United States supreme court ruled in the Richmond case that bank shares were not the only form of moneyed capital. In asking for a rehearing, counsel for the bank declared the Hartford case exactly parallels the Richmond case. Attorney General Ekern and attorneys for the city of Hartford denied that the two cases were identical.

SHIELDS GUILTY
The court held there was sufficient evidence to take the question whether Shields was guilty of assault to the jury and that its verdict cannot be disturbed.

Speaking of the Klan the court said: "It cannot be doubted that the public demonstrations of this order excite resentment on the part of those classes of our citizens whose Americanism the principles of the order condemn. But experience in our state does not indicate that such resentment, justly entertained, prompts reprisal by acts of violence or leads to a tumultuous breach of the peace. This fact testifies most creditably to the police and self-restraint of our citizens who are under Ku Klux Klan prescriptions."

George Shields, former night watchman at Boscobel has been a liberty under bond while his appeal from a sentence to a six months jail term was pending in the state supreme court. He was convicted of a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm by a jury at Lancaster last fall, it being alleged that he pointed a pistol at Bert Fischer of Musoda, in the course of a Ku Klux Klan parade in Boscobel last August.

Shields was knocked down and arose, pointed his pistol at Fischer and attempted unsuccessfully to fire it, according to the testimony.

DISBARRED RICHTER
The Wisconsin supreme court's action on its own initiative in starting disbarment proceedings against Arthur W. Richter, widely known Milwaukee attorney, was an unusual step.

Richter was accused of making an improper plea in his defense against

Mexico Blames Sheffield For Change In U.S. Policy

Copyright 1926 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington, D. C.—If Ambassador Sheffield returns to his post in Mexico City, it will be only for a short while.

For the question has been raised whether he is persona grata any longer to the Mexican government. The Mexicans blame Mr. Sheffield for the entire change of policy on the part of President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg from one of silent cooperation to open threats of withdrawal of recognition.

Mr. Sheffield, on the other hand, is said to take the position that his usefulness as ambassador would have ceased anyhow if he had not persuaded the American government to make a public demonstration of its concern over the way things have been going on in Mexico.

The facts which prompted the American government to issue its statement of warning to Mexico are not yet available to the public, nor does it appear that members of the senate foreign relations committee are closely informed. It is known that Senator

IN LEGISLATURE

Tuesday May Be Last Day of Legislative Work—Blaine Sets Veto Record

Madison—Eleven bills, nearly all of them buffeted between assembly and senate by committees on conference of each house, are all that remains pending of the nearly 1,500 measures introduced in the 1925 session of the Wisconsin legislature.

The bills are known as the "straggles" measures of the closing days of the legislative session. Disputes arose over amendments which necessitated the appointment of conference committees in attempts to smooth out the difficulties or compromise the issues.

Tuesday may be the last day of active work in the legislature, although the law making body cannot adjourn since the governor has had time to pass on all bills which have run a successful course through the legislature.

Since nearly half of the members of the legislature have departed for their homes and will not return for the last days of the session, it is not likely that any bill will pass over the objections of Governor Blaine.

The 1925 session was remarkable for the number of vetoes of the executive more than 30 having met such fate. More than 300 bills were enacted into law.

YOUNG GRANT IS MURDERED BY PRISONER

Was Sentenced to Hang Aug. 14 but Slayer Was Permitted a New Trial.

By Associated Press
Chicago — Bernard Grant, under sentence to be hanged on Aug. 14, and in whose behalf thousands of persons had signed petitions asking clemency died Monday as the result of stab wounds inflicted by his fellow prisoner Walter Krauser, once sentenced to hang with Grant for the same murder.

Krauser had obtained a new trial, but the state supreme court had refused a new trial in Grant's case. As a result Governor Small reprieved Grant twice to await Krauser's second trial.

The governor apparently agreed with Grant's lawyer that should Krauser escape death by a second trial, it would appear unequal justice to hang Grant.

The pair was convicted of killing Policeman Ralph Souders in 1922 and both sentenced to be hanged.

Grant's hair turned gray in jail during his long incarceration.

Krauser's case was to be retried this week. Grant, who was 19 years old when charged with the murder, and Krauser were untried in the jail. On Saturday during an exercise period Krauser produced a pocket knife and stabbed Grant five times in the back and chest.

Krauser was thrust into solitary confinement in the county jail. Grant was removed to the house of correction hospital.

Grant's parents are poor and his father a cripple.

Witness Says She Wouldn't Believe Faiman Under Oath

By Associated Press
Chicago — The defense in the William Darling Shepherd murder trial Monday further attacked the testimony and character of the state's star witness, Charles C. Faiman.

Mrs. Luella H. Rubeell, for two months business manager of Faiman's school, the National University of Sciences, testified she would not believe Faiman on oath, that she never saw a letter from Shepherd to Faiman, although she kept the files and that she never had seen Shepherd at Faiman's school.

Faiman paid her salary with four checks which were returned to her.

SENATOR LADD DIES MONDAY IN BALTIMORE

End Comes Shortly After Family Is Summoned to His Bedside in Hospital

Baltimore, Md. — Senator Edwin Ladd of North Dakota, died here at 10:20 a. m. Monday.

A complication of kidney trouble which took an acute turn for the worse during the night left the senator near death early Monday at the hospital where he was confined. Those at his bedside had given up hope. His secretary, Douglas McArthur, was called hurriedly from Washington. The senator was conscious and in full command of his faculties as late as Sunday night, but unless a quick and unexpected rally should occur, it was agreed that the fight would be without avail.

Senator Ladd passed away quietly retaining consciousness almost to the last. Mrs. Ladd arrived from Washington an hour before the end came and was at the bedside with Milton, one of the sons who is studying law in George Washington university and his daughter Virginia, who attends high school in Washington. Senator Ladd, while apparently realizing the end was near, aroused to greet them when they entered his room. The end came rapidly after their arrival.

BORN IN MAINE
Edmond Fremont Ladd was a native of Maine and a citizen of North Dakota which gave him high honors by adoption.

He was successively a chemist, professor, college president, writer and United States senator, attaining high honors, particularly in agricultural chemistry and economics.

Dr. Ladd was born in Starks, Me., on Dec. 13, 1858, the son of John and Rosella Locke Ladd. He attended the public schools and the Somerset academy where he was prepared for the University of Maine from which he graduated with the degree of bachelor of science.

In 1924 Senator Ladd became chairman of the senate oil investigating committee through the resignation of the chairmanship by Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin.

For many years, Senator Ladd published the North Dakota Farmer and wrote many works on chemistry and agriculture. He was a fellow of the A. A. S. and a member of the American Chemical society, the Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science and of the Society of Chemical Industries of London. He was married to Miss Ruzpah Sprague of Annapolis, Md., on Aug. 16, 1883. Eight children were born. Five daughters and three sons.

AS COLLEGE PRESIDENT
As a result of his services to the North Dakota Agricultural college, Dr. Ladd was chosen president of the school serving from 1916 until his election to the United States senate in 1920. Senator Ladd's election thrust him forward on the political stage as a strong proponent of the non partisan league and a factor in the farm bloc in congress. He also became interested in federal food regulation as a result of having served as a member of the standards committee on food products.

Birge Says Science Is Not In Conflict With Religion

By Associated Press
Madison — Science is teaching men to look for a progressive revelation and to expect from nature new truth which will call for change and reorganization of former truth, President E. A. Birge told members of the 1925 graduating class of the University of Wisconsin in the annual baccalaureate address here Monday.

The president pictured science as a mode of thought which men long neglected in their search for truth, but which was referred to in the biblical parable of the mustard seed, where, in response to the question "whereunto shall we liken the Kingdom of God?" came the answer "like a mustard seed, when it is sown, it groweth up."

"Through science," President Birge said, "man in important respects is learning to correct his knowledge, but what is more significant, to reverse his feeling, his attitude toward the work of the past. So far from attempting to detach himself from the larger world and to look at himself as in some way independent of it, man is coming to see that he is himself in a very real sense, an integral part of the lesson that man is the son of God the Creator."

"In science we find a new revelation of the Kingdom of God, a revelation whose nature was foreshadowed in the parable of the mustard seed. This revelation is directed primarily to thinking rather than to conduct, and its immediate purpose is to enlarge knowledge.

"Science has already taken control of large and increasing areas of our daily life and conduct. In ways innumerable it is remodeling our environment and thereby changing our actions. Along the lines of government, social organization and social conduct, science has found solutions for certain ethical problems and has created other new ones.

"The evolution of the universe is the freedom of God, and there is no larger freedom than His. This movement in its progress and its results is the glory of God, and there is no other glory. We as His children may enter into its glory and we are the lesson long desired in vain, toward which the teaching of recent centuries has been definitely moving. This the revelation whose half understood beginnings God's messengers are reading today."

President Birge sought to reconcile science with religion and to show that science was a tool through which man could get closer to the real truths of existence, as expressed in religion.

U. S. HUMANE SOCIETY TO CONVENE AT TOLEDO

Toledo, O.—Toledo will be host to the forty-ninth annual meeting of the American Humane society, Oct. 5-7. There are societies that have never had a representative at these meetings and special efforts are being made this year for universal attendance.

The annual convention of the Association each year has had a particular appeal for certain people and this year will be no exception. A wide variety of subjects will be discussed in the field of child and animal protection.

Delegates will visit the Lucas County Children's home, one of the representative institutions of its kind.

One of the features will be abundant opportunity for discussion, in the belief that more can be gained by delegates from such procedure than through the presentation of formal addresses.

MANY GATHER AT BURIAL OF BADGER IDOL

LaFollette Is Eulogized as "Embattled Prophet of New Democracy"

STATE HOUSE CLOSES

All Business at Capital Is Curtailed in Honor of Former Leader

By Associated Press
Madison—Service of extreme simplicity attended the burial Monday of Senator Robert M. LaFollette.

Although from the moment his funeral train arrived here last Saturday from Washington the state had claimed his body for its own, there was nothing of pomp or of ceremony in these the last honors that it might tender.

That was as the senator himself had wished.

To friends of a lifetime was given the sad task of conveying the body to sanctuary in his native soil at a point overlooking a broad blue lake beside which he was born and came to man's estate.

Many others with whom he had labored so long in the state and the nation were gathered from far and near to do homage at his bier. The expansive rotunda of the massive state capitol where Sunday his body lay in state was the place of the brief funeral service.

Thousands had journeyed to Madison for the funeral. Many of these came from the north and west, where the body Sunday while others reached here Monday by trains from Chicago and other nearby points some hours before the services at 1 p. m.

Throughout the hours that the body lay in state a steady stream of people passed in reverent silence. Even before the doors of the state house were opened at noon long lines had formed at Capitol square, and when they were closed again at twilight, some still were waiting.

IS EULOGIZED

Robert M. LaFollette was described as "the embattled prophet of a new democracy" in a funeral sermon delivered Monday by Dr. Albert Eustace Haydon, University of Chicago professor and pastor of the Unitarian church of Madison.

"His was the voice of humanism in politics," Dr. Haydon said. "Confronted with the tragedies of a soulless material civilization, Robert M. LaFollette dedicated himself to the principles that government is the guardian and servant of the life of all the people to the ideal that statecraft should be an intelligent instrument for social amelioration. He pointed to the way to a cooperating democracy of intelligence and heart."

"He worked for the solution of problems, the righting of wrongs, the removal of injustices and his weapon was intelligence, burning with a white light in analysis and accumulation of facts. Dedicated to this ideal he found himself constantly on the side of the poor, of the worker fighting the battle of those in whose faces the doors of opportunity were being closed in this once free land."

"He was forced to challenge special privilege in every form and sphere. He became the champion of the weak against the arrogance of wealth and power. Fearless, incorruptible, his head was above the muck and mire of selfishness and greed, his feet firmly planted in the thickness of fact, he gave his life to make government the servant of human values in a new and difficult age."

"When the day comes as come it will, when social organization will center about the values of the higher

7 AUTOMOBILES, 2 STREET CARS, IN CAR CRASHES

No Serious Injuries Reported in Series of Week End Automobile Wrecks

One automobile was burnt up after it tipped over, two were hit by street cars and several others figured in accidents over the weekend. The toll of injuries was negligible, however, as the occupants escaped with minor cuts or bruises, or perhaps a shaking up.

Drowsiness was responsible for the complete ruin of a coupe driven by Darrell Vayne of Marshfield. He was going toward Appleton about 11 o'clock Saturday night on highway 15, accompanied by his wife and baby. He fell asleep at the wheel when the car was a short distance east of Fremont. The car ran into a ditch and tipped over. The occupants were unhurt except for a cut on Mr. Vayne's forehead. The automobile caught fire after the tipover and was burned so badly that it was junked.

One of the street car mixups occurred Saturday evening at the intersection of E. North and N. Durkeest, when Dr. M. J. Sandborn's Franklin coach and an eastbound interurban car collided. The automobile was driven by George Puth, garage owner, who had just completed repairs and was taking it to the doctor's home at 533 N. Durkeest. Mr. Puth was going east and made a left turn to go onto N. Durkeest. He was obliged to stop, however, to let another automobile pass and was unable to drive off the tracks before the interurban reached that point. Considerable damage was done to rear end of the motorcar but Mr. Puth was unhurt.

Two automobiles and an eastbound city street car were damaged in a traffic mixup at 9:45 Sunday evening on W. College-ave west of Appleton. A Ford owned by Jahnke auto livery was being driven west on W. College-ave by Michael Lockschmidt, 153 E. College-ave, and was occupied also by Emil Homblotte, 1027 W. Lawrence-st. The machine and the street car collided and the automobile was pushed against a large sedan owned by Paul Scallon, 832 W. Front-st. Scallon's car was parked at the curb and was pushed over the side, walk and against the front of the Klinker shoe store. The front side of the Ford was bent, the headlights broken and other parts damaged. A bumper was broken on the Scallon car. Two windows were broken in the street car, which was being operated by Carl Van Dinter, motorman. Lockschmidt and Homblotte were cut slightly.

About 80 quarts of milk was spilled in another accident at 7:30 Monday morning, when a milk truck owned by Henry Haferecker, dairy man living near Mackville, tipped over just outside the city limits on highway 47. The machine was driven by the owner's son Elmer, who was on his way to Appleton on the Mackville rd. He was obliged to take to the ditch to prevent his car from hitting a horse-drawn vehicle, due to the lack of caution on the part of Chicago tourists who were trying to pass other traffic. The truck hit a telephone pole and overturned, spilling most of the milk, but Mr. Haferecker was unhurt. One tire was ruined and the body of the truck damaged somewhat.

A Ford coupe occupied by two young couples whose names were not obtained plunged into a deep ditch on highway 76 east of Greenville Sunday evening. The occupants escaped injury, however, and the car had little damage.

COUNTY MOTORCOPS ARREST SIX SPEEDERS

The coffers of the municipal court were enriched by $75.20 Monday morning as the result of another busy weekend for two Outagamie county motorcycle cops. Alfred Dunn ran up the highest score bringing in four county speeders and Andrew Miller nabbed two more.

Miller's arrests were A. E. McMahon, who was traveling at 44 miles an hour Friday night in the town of Grand Chute, and Henry Steybaur, who hit 43 miles an hour gait Sunday evening in the same town. Dunn started his string Saturday night when he arrested A. C. Klein, going 42 miles an hour in the town of Horton. Sunday night he added Erwin Klebeno hitting 44 miles an hour and Arthur B. Ross, traveling at a 50 mile an hour pace, both in the town of Greenville. He completed his quartet on Monday morning when he stopped D. J. Fisher in the town of Greenville. Fisher was tearing along at 41 miles an hour. All of the speeders paid fines of $10 and costs totaling $13.20 when they appeared in municipal court Monday morning.

SIMPLICITY MARKS LAFOLLETTE FUNERAL

Life when wealth will mean common weal when property will be less than humanity, then men will remember that Robert M. LaFollette trod that path before them.

CAPITOL CLOSED

The last services for him were of a simplicity in keeping with that of the life he had lived. While the state claimed him to the last, it was the plain people to whose cause he had devoted his all that gathered to show reverence to his memory.

The funeral was conducted in the rotunda of the state capital and interment was made in the family plot in Forest Hill cemetery beside the graves of the senator's father and mother.

Upon few men had Wisconsin bestowed higher honors in life and perhaps to none had she given so impressive a tribute in death. And yet there was nothing of pomp or display. It was the simple outpouring of the people from high places, and low bowing in respect at a bier.

All offices in the Wisconsin state-house were closed to business Monday as a mark of respect to the late senator.

All administrative departments in the capitol were prepared to close the entire day, according to an announcement by Governor Blaine.

The governor also advised that the respective houses of the legislature would convene without the transaction of any legislative business for the purpose of making their own special plans in connection with participation in the funeral services.

The supreme court met only to hand down its usual decisions and to admit to the bar graduates of the Law school of the University of Wisconsin, after which it adjourned.

During the funeral service the casket rested in the spot where Sunday it lay in state. A single American flag covered it and in the background was a mass of palms and floral tributes, relieving the drabness of the onyx marble which flanked the bier.

The heavy marble balustrade encircling the well of the rotunda was covered with wreaths and sprays of flowers. There were offerings from the United States senate, the Wisconsin legislature, labor, fraternal, educational and political organizations and a host of individuals.

Joining the family on the main floor of the rotunda were the active and honorary pall bearers, including the congressional delegation, members of the state legislature and state officers. Others were seated or found places in three of the main galleries.

The overflow was cared for as far as might be in the well below.

The choir was in the east gallery overlooking the temporary altar.

Bearing with great fortitude still this supreme trial of her life, Mrs. LaFollette entered the funeral chamber between her sons, Robert J. and Philip followed by her two daughters and other members of the immediate family. They were seated to the right of the altar with the congressional delegation to the left.

The faint strains of the hymn of "Nearer My God to Thee" floated from an organ in an overhead recess marked the opening of the services. The choir took up the familiar words as a hush descended upon the hundreds within the capital.

Before his funeral oration, Dr. Hayden read the burial service of the Unitarian church. The singing of hymns

DENIES NEW HEARING FOR HARTFORD BANK

A suit brought by his former housekeeper, Mrs. Clara Stark, for payment for her services. She was awarded the claim in the circuit court of Milwaukee county and the verdict was upheld in the supreme court, which then retained the records for "disciplinary" action.

The plea upon which the court started its action was that the services were rendered pursuant to an illegal contract. Richter told the court that he did not intend to imply that the relations between the housekeeper and himself were illegal, but that the contract was illegal. The contract, he said, was an agreement to marry and was void because he was married at the time.

BLUE SKY LAW UPHOLD

Wisconsin's "blue sky" law was sustained by the supreme court Monday

"Abide With Me," by the choir and "America" by choir and audience and the brief service was ended.

In its decision affirming the order of the Milwaukee circuit court quashing a writ of habeas corpus under which A. L. Kreutzer, a Milwaukee broker, sought his release from charges of violating the law.

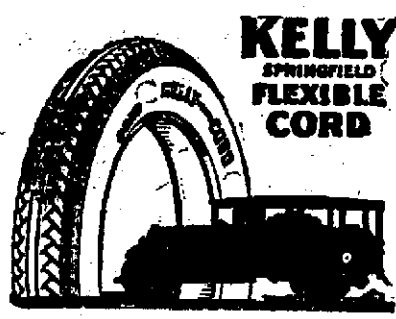

The court ruled that the novelty of laws could not affect their validity, and asserted that the state could regulate the sale of securities as a matter of public policy.

The court affirmed the conviction of Frank Carohidi, a Milwaukee Real estate broker on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, and the Waldheim case involving the taxation of stores selling on the installment plan. A writ of prohibition was issued to prevent enforcement of the condemnation of the property involved in the extension of Juneau park, Milwaukee.

St. Elizabeth hospital expects to send two persons to the conference but it has not decided who will go.

Doctors, nurses, and hospital executives from all parts of the United States and Canada will be in attendance. It is expected that the largest of all the meetings held by the association during the last ten years.

George A. Metzgar of Brooklyn.

A feature of the convention will be the hospital exhibits of 57 of the country's largest equipment and supply firms in the big exhibit hall at Springbank.

COLLEGE STUDES GET SUMMER JOB

Lawrentians Assist in Operating Epworth Resort on East Shore of Lake Michigan

Thirteen Lawrence students, several of them from Appleton, have secured summer work at the annual summer session of the Epworth Assembly of the Methodist church at Epworth Heights, Mich., near Ludington.

Dr. W. S. Naylor, acting president of Lawrence college will be executive secretary of the assembly, and will start his work at Epworth Heights July 1. He plans to be at the assembly throughout the month of July.

Most of the students are at the Epworth Hotel, and started their work Monday.

The Epworth Hotel is operated in connection with the assembly and is owned by the Epworth Assembly.

Lawrentians who will be at the hotel are Earl Holt, '24, Mary Benette, '25, Randolph, who will be head waitress; Ellen Tutton, '25, Palmyra in charge of the preparation of salads; Maxine Cabell, '25, Appleton, in charge of the preparation of vegetables; Helen Gettleman, '26, New Prague, Minn.; Muriel Greunke, '26, Appleton; Maurice Cahall, '25, Appleton; Carola Tretefin, '26, Appleton; Barbara Ruch, '26, Fond du Lac; Merle Damereau, '26, Fairwater, who will work as waitress in the hotel dining room; William Edmunds, '26, Palmyra, will be hotel porter; Charles Marsh, '25, Denver, Col., will be in charge of the Epworth store also run by the assembly, and he will be assisted by Lester Emans, '25 of Appleton.

About 200 people from all parts of the United States attend the Epworth assembly each summer. The largest attendance is during July and August. Arthur Anderson, Chicago, president and organizer of the Epworth Anderson Certified Public Accountant is president of the assembly. The executive committee is made up mostly of Chicago business men.

The Epworth hotel has accommodations for 150 people and there are 200 cottages in connection with the hotel. According to Dr. Naylor, the greatest stress is not placed upon chautauque programs, or religious meetings, but rather upon recreations and outdoor sports. Epworth Heights situated on the east shore of Lake Michigan is an ideal spot for bathing, fishing, tennis, yachting and golf. The assembly is primarily a place for people to spend their summer vacation and get all the benefits which the location of Epworth Heights affords.

Every Sunday an outstanding, nationally known preacher is secured as the assembly speaker. This year three men of speakers were judged among the 25 best preachers in the United States. They are Bishop Hughes, Charles Clayton Morrison, Chicago, editor of the Christian Century, and the 1925 Lawrence commencement orator, and Ernest F. Title, pastor of the First Methodist church of Evanston, Ill.

Directory-Makers Say City Has Population Of 22,000

At last the 1925 edition of Appleton's city directory is off the press, much to the relief of those who depend largely upon its contents for their business.

This is the first city directory published for this city within five years. Its issuance was delayed on account of the tardiness of the city in completing its systematic revision of street names and street numbers.

The book was published by the Wright Directory company of Milwaukee which canvassed the territory for directory data and advertisements last winter. It is of the same size as the previous one, but the print is larger and more legible.

This work of 608 pages contains a number of new features which were absent in the old directory, but on the other hand some readers will regret the absence of the county directory of farmers and villages which formed a supplement of the previous book.

NEW DEPARTMENTS

Allowing for a few errors that creep into every directory, the business man, professional man, stranger or any resident will find the book a valuable compendium of information about Appleton, its people, institutions, streets, civic, commercial and industrial activities. The directory is compiled in several important departments, such as alphabetical directory of names, buyers' guide, classified street directory and miscellaneous department.

The classified street directory is printed on pink pages, thus making it easier to be found. A valuable added feature is a list of all the patrons on rural routes leading out of Appleton. In the rear the user will find a list of the local businesses and professions, classified.

The principal part of the directory, the alphabetical list of names, takes up 375 pages, showing the names of residents and business concerns, the occupations of the former, their wife, if there is one, and both the old house numbers and those in use since Feb. 1.

In addition the directory contains lists of lodges, clubs, labor unions, churches, schools, corporations, county city and school district officers, officers in towns and villages, fire alarm boxes and an introduction on historical and statistical data of Appleton.

The directory compilers estimate the present population of Appleton at about 22,000, which is an increase of more than 2,000 since the issue of the last book. Other notable items in the review are: assessed valuation, $30,000, bonded debt, $895,000, postage receipts, $137,765.87, bank deposits $12,000,000, bank clearings, $52,000,000, value of building permits, $2,184,975, factories (18), operations, 3,500 annual wage $3,648,000, value of industrial output, $30,000,000.

The statistical Stephen will find a number of things of interest in the new directory. Appleton is well supplied with grocers for the book lists 53.

The consumer will find 17 meat markets in the city to keep his table supplied. When in need of winter fuel, he has the choice of the business of eight established wood and coal dealers. Fifteen barber shops court his patronage. When in need of clothing, 23 clothing stores are beckoning him. There are 20 dentists to keep his teeth in good condition, 28 doctors to guard his health, 21 lawyers to protect him under or from the law.

There are 19 garages and automobile repair shops in the city. They have not yet succeeded in driving out the shoe repair shops, for the book still lists 17 of them. It will be a surprise to some readers to find that there are only 10 filling stations, contradicting the common joke about a filling station in every block. The directory man, however, may have missed a few, of that some will be confident.

The stranger coming to this city will find 13 hotels ready to entertain him. If he is thirsty, there are no fewer than 28 soft drink establishments waiting for trade. If he intends to settle here, 24 real estate agents are willing to direct him to a site.

"What is in a name?" But Smith is still the most distinctive of all it names, after it is so common. That is true if one takes in all the variations in spelling, such as Smith, Schmidt, Schmitt, Schmitt, Schmitt, Schmidt and Smiths. Their total is 168.

Appleton is well populated with Germans-one finds, not only by considering the large number of Schmidts, but also the 48 Schultzes of varied spellings, the 47 Schroeders, the 44 Schneiders listed in the directory.

The name of Jones is repeated only 17 times, but Johnson tallies 40 and Miller 31. Scandinavians seem to be in the minority with 17 Nelsons, 8 Christiansons and 8 Olsens. But Irish register 43 Murphys and 160 names beginning with a "Mc". The McKays are outnumbered by their Dutch brethren who produce 200 "Vans".

The letter in the directory that introduces the largest number of names is "S" with 47 pages. "K" is second with 30 pages, and "M" and "H" third with 27 pages each.

It is observed that a large number of industries or mercantile establishments like to adopt the name of "Appleton" in their firm names, for there are just 30 of such firms. Two persons listed in the directory also claim the name Appleton as individuals. They are both girls and as such are the genuine and undisputed Miss Appletons.

PICK COUNTY WINNERS IN STATE ESSAY TILT

Benedict Heilmann, route 4, Appleton and Margaret Rusch, route 3, Seymour, have been selected by a committee of state judges as the two Outagamie-co winners in the statewide essay contest of the Wisconsin Manufacturers association, according to a letter received by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, from G. F. Kull, formerly of Appleton, secretary of the association.

The two pupils of Outagamie-co rural schools will receive a free trip to the Thirteenth Wisconsin Products Exposition and 1925 State Fair as a reward for their work and will have an opportunity of winning further prizes on an essay written about the exposition and fair after they return. Full instructions concerning the trip, when it will start and the name of the chaparrone for the contestants, which probably will be Mr. Meating, will be mailed to the contestants and Mr. Meating at a later date, according to the letter.

SMALLER CAR LICENSE FEE AFTER JULY 1

Automobiles that have not been operated before July 1 of this year will be registered at a discount of 25 percent on the fees when the reduced rates on 1925 motor vehicle licenses go into effect on July 30, according to an announcement by Fred R. Zimmerman, secretary of state. An affidavit that the car has not been used prior to the date must accompany the application, and no discount can be allowed on applications that reach the office of the secretary of state before July 1.

Purchasers of used cars are warned to obtain the former certificate of registration and the signature of the seller. A transfer fee of $1 is required except where the certificate shows the vehicle was last licensed in another state.

COLORADO WANTS TO DEBATE AT LAWRENCE

The strong reputation made by the Lawrence debate team on the far western trip to the coast this year is evidenced by the request received by the college forensic board from the University of California asking for a debate here sometime in January next year.

"This offer marks one of the highest recognitions accorded a college team as the western university but seldom debates a college. The California team probably will be composed of two men, graduate students.

The forensic board has not yet taken definite action to accept the debate. Suggested questions are debates on Eugenics, Evolution, or the Democratic deal. Such questions are not ordinarily debated by Lawrence. There has also been no definite understanding as to whether the meet will be decision or non-decision.

The old structure had served its purpose for 40 years and was condemned this year. The new building will be ready at the time school opens in the fall it is expected. The old structure was condemned by the state department of education after an inspection. The district had voted down the new building at every meeting for over a year until Mr. Meating had called in the inspector to show the residents the danger of the rickety structure.

ENOUGH NEW TEACHERS TO FILL VACANCIES

Outagamie-co will have just about enough teachers from its county training school to fill vacancies in the rural schools this year, according to A. G. Meating, superintendent of schools. Usually there is a surplus in the county, but this year there may be a shortage if anything, Mr. Meating said. Of the 54 graduates of the 1925 training school class only 28 will remain in the county to teach as the remainder are tuition students from other counties. The normal demand in Outagamie-co is from 30 to 35 new teachers a year, but this number may be less this year as not so many old teachers are leaving their posts as usual, Mr. Meating said.

HIGH TAX KEEPS BOATS OFF WATER

Ancient and Honorable Sport Motorboating Is Now an Expensive Luxury

Ardor for the grand old summer sport of motorboating has been somewhat chilled this year by the luxury tax which has been imposed on the boat owners, according to officers of the Naval Reserve located in this district, who are having some difficulty in recruiting reserves. There now are about 20 small boats operating around Appleton where there formerly were 250 of all sizes. All efforts to keep the sport alive by having the tax repealed have failed and the boaters have given up hope it seems.

The luxury tax provides for an annual tax of $1 per foot for every boat over 5 tons in weight and up to 50 feet in length, a tax of $2 per foot for boats over 50 and up to 100 feet in length, and $4 per foot for every boat over 100 feet in length. A boat of 50 feet would cost $500 per year and one 51 feet long would cost $102 per year. Motorboat owners of this vicinity have found it nearly impossible to put a boat in commission under these circumstances and this has caused the falling off in the sport. The biggest objection of local owners is that the tax makes no distinction in value of boats. A boat 12 years old and valued at $500 and another absolutely new and valued at from

TOO MANY PEOPLE HAVEN'T JUDGEMENT ENOUGH TO USE THEIR OWN

MAKE NEW APPEAL FOR S. CHERRY-ST OUTLET

Another appeal to Winnebago-co officials to bring about early action on a south side outlet for Cherry-st bridge will be made by the highway committee of the chamber of commerce at a conference Saturday with that county at Oshkosh.

It is believed that corporation of all persons or bodies concerned is possible at this time and that some plan may be evolved that will mean the early opening of a new road so there will be a straight highway from the bridge south to W. Foster-st.

$25,000 to $30,000, both 100 feet long, are both taxed the same amount, $200, the objectors said.

RUSSIA TELLS U. S. IT NOW HAS NEW NAME

Letters, parcels or any other mail addressed to Russia, hereafter are likely to find way to the dead letter office, according to a notice received by United States Postal authorities from the land of Bolsheviks. The proper way to address mail to that country is "Union of Socialist Soviet Republics." People who wish to send mail to Russia are urged to use the new title in full, as the use of initials is likely to result in confusion.

APPLETON YOUTH THIRD IN WINDOW CONTEST

Although only 19 years old, Clenton Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Grant, 1116 W. Spring-st., has gained prominence for himself as a window trimmer. He has been announced as the winner of third prize in a national contest conducted by Allen A. Hensery Co. for the best window display of its goods. Mr. Grant is employed by the General Mercantile Co., Two Rivers, and submitted one of his displays there in the contest. He received a check for $25 for the third best window. A New York trimmer took first place and one from Texas was second. The young men gained his first experience in Appleton stores and spent three months at a trimmers' school in Chicago. He has been at Two Rivers for about a year.

For Germs

No soap that is safe for toilet use will "remove" germs any better than Palmolive

If guarding a good complexion is your aim, use a soap made to protect it

SOME beauty seekers, we are told, may be practicing a grave mistake in complexion care. So this is published for the good of all concerned—for your sake and for ours.

Soaps to "destroy" germs should be used only on advice of a physician. All soaps "remove" germs to a certain degree. No soap suitable for toilet use will "remove" germs any better than Palmolive.

The real difference in soaps is in their effect upon your skin. And good complexions are too precious for experiment. Remember this when you are tempted to touch your face with other than a good complexion soap.

In old days, women were told, "Use no soap on your face." For all soaps were too harsh. Then Palmolive came. A soap made of cosmetic oils. A soap made to be used lavishly on the skin.

Then note what happened. Women tried it and found amazingly good complexions. Palmolive became quickly the leading toilet soap of the world. In France, home of cosmetics, Palmolive is one of the two largest selling toilet soaps. French soaps, in France itself, are being supplanted by Palmolive.

That is because Palmolive Soap is a unique creation, based on 60 years of soap study. A scientific soap made for ONE purpose only: to foster good complexions.

Don't expect Palmolive results from ordinary soaps. Don't expect them from medicated soaps. Don't expect them from "jack-of-all-trades" soaps—soaps claimed "germ combatants," soaps claimed for facial use and fabric cleansing alike.

Palmolive is not the only fine toilet soap. We know of two others that compare favorably. But they cost you 25 cents, while Palmolive costs but 10 cents... no more than ordinary soaps. Enormous production brings you this modest price.

Wash, launder, cleanse with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake, take care. Use Palmolive, a soap you know is safe to use. It is nature's formula to "Keep That School-girl Complexion."

FRENCH WOMEN

Largely Vote "No" on French Soaps

In France, women smile at the age-old beauty bubble of "French soaps." Palmolive is today one of the two greatest selling toilet soaps in France. French soaps have been supplanted.

Parisian beauties are glad to pay almost twice as much for a cake of Palmolive as American women pay. And, in many cases, three times as much as for their own "French" soaps. Remember, this when tempted by "Frenchy" claims for soaps.

Note carefully the name and wrapper. Palmolive is never sold unwrapped.

THE TEAPOT DOME DECISION

Judge Kennedy, United States District Judge, at Cheyenne, Wyoming, has decided the Teapot Dome is rightfully under control of the Mammoth Oil Company, part of the Sinclair organization: in other words, the court has decided that the charges by the United States Government that the Teapot Dome was gained by fraud existing between the Mammoth Oil Company and Albert B. Fall, formerly Secretary of the Interior, have not been sustained by the evidence.

The court intimates that it wishes that it could hold otherwise and that it realizes the degree of unpopularity with which the public will receive the decision. In making a decision according to the evidence as the court viewed it, and in making an unpopular decision at that, the judge is to be commended for his courage. Nevertheless, we subscribe to a wholly different view and opinion of what the evidence shows.

The court, in its opinion, deals with the many "suspicious circumstances" and holds that a decision cannot be made upon mere suspicion. There can be no controversy over that. But when does suspicion ripen into substantive proof?

The evidence which was adduced, by the Government, it seems to us, goes far beyond the realm of suspicion. Why should so many men who were involved in the negotiations with the Government for the Teapot Dome property take vacations in Mexico, South America and European capitals for many months prior to and during the time of the trial? Why should they refuse to come home and be interrogated about their connection with the transaction? The guilty not only flee when no one pursueth but they flee the faster when a United States marshal with a subpoena is on their trail. This is not merely a "suspicious circumstance"; it rises to the dignity of substantial evidence.

Why should Secretary Fall, when a witness on the stand, refuse to answer any questions upon the ground that his testimony might tend to incriminate him? Why should his son-in-law, charged by the government with actually delivering the bribe, likewise refuse to answer any question when upon the witness stand upon the ground that the evidence might tend to incriminate him? Is this a mere "suspicious circumstance"? It is more and much more than that. It is evidence and evidence of a very strong nature concerning the transactions that took place. Fraud is always difficult to prove. Bribery or any other form of influencing public officials is seldom done in the presence of a court reporter taking down the conversations. Fraud is a creature of dark alleys. That must be borne in mind in exposing it.

The court in its decision found that the Teapot Dome transaction was of a beneficial nature to the United States government. There was evidence before the court upon which such a finding could be made; but whether a transaction of that character is of benefit to one of the parties or not is a purely conjectural thing that only time can tell. No one knows, nor in the very nature of things can anyone know, the extent of the oil lakes in the Teapot Dome reserve. Whether the contract might turn out to be beneficial to the government is entirely beside the point. Sinclair was of the opinion that it would be beneficial to him and his company else he would not have entered into the transaction, taken such devious and secret methods of closing the deal nor been instrumental in making "loans" to Ex-Secretary Fall. If any sort of contract is made with the government through the improper use of influence or in any other improper manner, the person who makes it should not even be given the opportunity of finding out whether the contract be to his advantage or otherwise.

It is to be noted that the government is appealing from the decision of Judge Kennedy and, for the benefit of something approaching decency in our political life, it is to be hoped that the appeal will be successful.

G. WASHINGTON, REALTOR

It is now discovered that the Father of His Country, he who was "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen," was also first among real estate advertisers. The San Diego, Calif., real estate board has had made a lot of copies of an "ad" found in the issue of August 20, 1773, of the Maryland Journal and Baltimore Advertiser. George Washington advertised 20,000 acres for sale thus:

As these lands are among the first which have been surveyed in the part of the country in which they lie, it is almost needless to premise that none can exceed them in luxuriance of soil, or convenience of situation, all of them lying upon the banks either of the Ohio or Kanawha, and abounding with fine fish and wild fowl of various kinds, as also in most excellent meadows, many of which (by the bountiful hand of Nature) are, in their present state, almost fit for the scythe.

From every part of these lands, water carriage is now had to Fort Pitt (Now Pittsburgh) by an easy communication. It is thought the portage to Potomac may well be reduced within the compass of a few miles, to the great ease and convenience of settlers in transporting their produce to market.

And it may not be amiss further to observe, that these must be among the most valuable lands from their contiguity to the seat of government, which more than probably will be fixed at the mouth of the Great Kanawha.

There you are! and fairly up-to-date. Rich soil, convenient location, suitable for the sports of hunting and fishing as well as for agriculture, convenient to markets for product and contiguous to future thriving towns. Modern real estate advertising is scarcely more complete and roseate than this.

VERY FEW FRITTERERS

Because news confines itself to the unusual, some Americans may have a wrong impression of the thousands of young people going out from the colleges this month.

A Yale warning to thirsty alumni, the suppression of a college humor monthly for obscenity, the injury of a student in a class rush, and similar incidents serve to spread a notion that our colleges are sending out fritters of time, dad's money and their own character.

The most significant fact about the fritterer is that he usually fritters himself out of college long before graduation. There is really work to be done at college and marks to be earned and the young man who earns them spends much of his off time doing it. At the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce in the University of Pennsylvania it was recently discovered that one of the causes of failure was "too much study." Men were found who regularly stayed at their books until the small hours of the morning. Another cause was too much outside employment, to gain funds for board and lodging and tuition.

Instances of this kind are far more common than the other, but they don't get into the papers. It is perhaps the duty of newspapers to inform the public at this time of year that midnight oil, or at any rate midnight electricity, is an actual not a fictitious commodity and that most nights and for most students it is burned not under the gilded ceiling of a dance hall but under the green shade of a study lamp.

Treasure hunters are not extinct. They are called reapers now.

One oyster can lay 50,000,000 eggs. You might cut this out to paste in your hen house.

Food experts say people eat less since the war. That's fine. But they pay more for it.

Germans are growing Hindenburg mustaches. Which is what the women get for electing him.

Being a drug clerk is dangerous. Dry agents get you.

DECEIVING THE DOCTOR

Once I had a patient—for a year or so. Needless to say this story has a sad ending. But for a year or so my patient and I got along very well together. I was fairly honest with him—which I now realize was a mistake—and he was fairly dishonest, which is always a mistake. My patient had been a heavy drinker and he came under my observation with his arteries, kidneys, liver and things pretty badly damaged. But I jolled him along and appealed to his sense of duty toward his family and all that sort of thing, and after a time he quit drinking. So he promised me, and so he constantly reassured me whenever we met. All the while he was drinking, but perhaps as a mere symptom of his alcoholism he felt bound to assure me that he had no further craving for drink. His arteries, kidneys, liver and things remained in status quo. But we felt we were lucky to remain alive. One day my patient developed pneumonia. He was desperately ill with it. It was in February and the air was fine, so we gave him the air, the open air treatment, to the horror of the neighbors. Ordinarily no alcoholic patient puts up a poor fight, usually a losing fight, against pneumonia. But my patient was not entirely outa luck. He came through. Not entirely through, but he coasted along smilingly for several days past the more or less "crisis" and I was on the point of "pronouncing" the patient out of danger when just as all the neighbors had predicted—he up and had a chill and went into a high fever and delirium and everything, and after a day or two, we found that he had developed emphysema—which is an accumulation of pus in the pleural cavity.

Well, it looked bad for us all. My crazy open air treatment seemed destined to eternal damnation in that neighborhood. But I was young and with all that nonchalance and sang froid of youth I announced to the assembled family, neighbors and sightseers—most of whom were regular old Irish biddies who were trying to persuade the distracted family to can me and call in some good Jewish doctor—and I must admit most of the Jewish doctors are good—that we were gonna operate at once. Then I argued the pros and cons with the assembly on the one hand, while with the other I dragged the patient off to the hospital, and with both hands I operated on him. The operation was a complete success, as such things go. The patient's nose cleared up and he sailed along the uneventful course of convalescence for just four days. Then, quite suddenly, he informed the nurse he would have a drink. Certainly. She brought him a mug of Adam's ale. He sniffed at it and threw it on the floor. He meant whisky, and he quick about it. Alas, the doctor had left no order for whisky and the nurse could not give him any. Maybe when the doctor came in the afternoon he would order some. But afternoon was long years away.

The patient waxed wild again, and tore the dressings off and dragged the drainage tube out of his side generally making the welkin ring, and by the time the doctor arrived the patient was raving in the conventional manner, picking at the bedclothes and deftly dodging the lungs of three headed cats and wicked assaults of cow sized spiders and other creatures too gloomorous to mention. Of course this mania exhausted what strength or vitality remained and so the story ended.

Now I often think that maybe if that patient had been honest with me, the story might have had a happy ending.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Iodin in First Aid

I had a rash break out on my wrist and I painted the place with Iodin and the doctor said I drove the poison in (it proved to be ivy poisoning) and now the calves of my legs and my feet are covered with it. (E. B.)

Answer.—The Iodin may not have been the best remedy, but you must have misunderstood what the doctor said, for of course nothing of the sort could "drive poison in." Ammonia water would have been a better first aid application, had you suspected the nature of the trouble. A poison ivy extract for hypodermic injection is now available from physicians, and one or two doses of such an extract—a homeopathic remedy—will bring prompt relief in many cases.

Seven persons from Oshkosh and Fond du Lac were killed and more than fifty were injured when a special excursion train of the Chicago and North-Western road crashed into a freight train at DePere yesterday morning. Two of the coaches were telescoped. A relief train made up at Appleton carried Drs. Reese, Canavan, Ritchie, Mills, Lettitt, Ellsworth, Ostrander, Winslow and Marshall to the scene. Other Appleton men who assisted at the improvised hospital at West DePere high school were Byron Beveridge, Joseph Kaestle, Fred Simplich, Karl Stansbury, Tom and Herman Heckert. This was one of the worst wrecks in this vicinity in many years.

Lee Chilson was the winner in the tournament staged Saturday at Riverview Golf club. His score was 90. The ladies' putting match was won by Miss Ella Wood with Miss Edith Ryan, second. Second place in the tournament was won by C. S. Dickinson, and third by Paul V. Cary.

The Appleton baseball team added another victory yesterday when it defeated Oshkosh 24 to 3. T. W. Orblison left that night for Port William, Ontario, to arrange for construction of a new paper-mill.

Told In Brief,
Simple Style

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

The Washington government is worried about Mexico again.

Secretary of State Kellogg's warning to President Calles that he must take care of American interests south of the Rio Grande was plain to the point being almost undiplomatic.

In effect, Calles was told that failure on his part to act on Washington's suggestions might make it desirable for the United States to side against him in case any revolutionary attempt develops among his own people to unseat him.

The state department didn't quite say in so many words that he'd better "be good" or this government will stir up a revolution against him and back it up too but Calles isn't as bright as he's given credit for being, if he doesn't read just that threat between the lines.

AS USUAL
Calles went into office with the reputation of an extreme radical—a communist, some said.

But as usually happens with these very "ultra" politicians as soon as actual responsibility is entrusted to them, once in the presidency he began to show signs of conservatism. This greatly pleased the Washington administration, which, from being exceedingly suspicious of the new executive, took to speaking of him very highly.

The Mexican radicals didn't like it, however. They considered that Calles had betrayed them and have been exerting tremendous pressure to force him back into line.

J. R. Sheffield, American ambassador in Mexico City, evidently thought he saw signs that Calles was yielding, for he rushed home in hot haste to report to Secretary Kellogg.

Interviewed on the road, he denied that anything was the matter, but that, in reality, there was, is proved by Kellogg's message to Calles directly following Sheffield's arrival in Washington.

CHINA

Greed of Japan's business men has undone in China, the work of diplomats have been engaged with ever since the Tokyo government adopted a conciliatory policy toward the neighboring mainland people.

Up to four or five years ago the Japanese method of getting, or trying to get, what Japan wanted from China was by force or threats of it.

Then, quite suddenly, the ruling group of islanders seemed to make up their minds that a better way would be to win Chinese by making them their friends, by convincing them that their interests were in common—the obvious idea being to combine the two countries, perhaps not aggressively, but at least defensively against the western world.

It would have been a strong combination, too—China—contributing bulk and Japan—modern training. Moreover, the Chinese were beginning to take to the plan.

Just before his death, as notable a man as the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen declared for it. It promised to be an epoch-making triumph for Japanese diplomacy.

RUINED

All this time, however, Japanese business interests in China stuck to the old system of merciless exploitation and brutality. They kept it up until there was an explosion.

Everything was all right between Tokyo and a few officials in Peking but the masses of Chinese hated everything with the Japanese label. They hated most other foreigners.

Adventures In The Library

JANE AUSTEN AFTER A HUNDRED YEARS

They have dug up another fragment of a book Jane Austen. It has been published in England just as it was written, with not a comma changed or a misspelled word corrected. It is about a third of a novel in length, the publishers announce, and it was written by the great English realist a few months before her death. She was already ill with the disease that took her life when she worked on the manuscript and that is given by the publisher as the reason why it is not to the level of most of her books.

About a year ago another fragment by Miss Austen was published after it had remained in manuscript for over a hundred years. That bit of writing however had been finished by another hand a hundred years after the author had passed off the scene, one of the distant relatives of Miss Austen having had the temerity to try her hand at completing work that the great novelist had left unfinished.

As might have been expected, it was a failure, and the only interest in it was the interest of curiosity. But the critics fell upon the unhappy person who attempted to take up the too, except Americans and Russians, but they hated the Japanese worst. The latest outbreak in China spells complete ruin of the Nippon government's plan on what seemed the very eve of its success.

America has every chance to profit by this if she doesn't allow herself to become involved with the nationalities the Chinese are in insurrection against, but she'll have to be very careful, for the others are trying desperately to mix her into the trouble with themselves, not desiring to see her gain any advantage at their expense—though through their own fault.

(Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

story in Miss Austen's style and heaped scorn upon her. It was probably because of that fact that the publishers this time decided to leave Miss Austen untouched with a vengeance, not venturing to make a single correction.

SHOWED HER STUFF

As a result we have a book that, although negligible as fiction, will be interesting as furnishing an idea of what Miss Austen's stuff looked like before it had passed through the usual processes of correction. A comic aspect of the situation is that one of the greatest English novelists who ever lived is found to have been a very poor speller. Fiction writers have seen the fragment declare that she often spells the same word several different ways on the same page, and she never learned which letter came first "i" or the "e" in words that have combinations of those two letters. It is a curious fact that there is many a person who is such a sure speller that we would be absolutely sure he was right even if the dictionary disagreed with him but who can never write a sentence, with enough punch in it so that anyone cares to read it; while on the other hand many a great writer has to go to the dictionary for the simplest words.

The publication of the fragments left by Jane Austen at her death will not add to her fame or mean anything in the history of English literature. Jane Austen lives because she wrote about five of the greatest works of realism in English fiction and she will continue to live because of them regardless of what is discovered later.

CAN'T SPOIL HER WORK

Her position is so secure that it is inconceivable that any of her foot admirers can spoil it through the publication of these literary remains, which usually are better left "re-mains." Jane Austen's position in the English novel is more secure than that of her great contemporary Walter Scott and there is probably not another English novelist that followed her who is more certain of lasting fame than she is.

Scott cut a much bigger figure in the world in his day than the slight girl in an English parsonage who created the immortal characters found in her handful of novels. But Scott is already old-fashioned and there are very many who find it quite impossible to read him. He dealt in romantic material, which is mortal, and it seems likely that his reputation will become more shadowy as time goes on.

But Jane Austen dealt in lasting stuff and, except for the phraseology which has a flavor of quaintness because of the changes that have taken place in the English language the past hundred years, her work is as fresh today as when it was penned by her calm and serene nineteenth-century genius. She describes the people of today and she describes the people who will leave a century from now because she accurately portrayed people of her own day exactly as she found them. Time can have little effect on a writer of that kind if the writer has genius.

USE MANY CARS TO CARRY COAL

Railroads Must Have Extended Period to Transport Coal

Approximately one thousand railroad cars are required to carry Appleton's domestic coal supply to this city each year. It requires approximately 131,000 cars to carry the coal used in the State of Wisconsin in a single year.

It is obvious that the transportation of this coal must be spread over a long period of time. An attempt to move it in a single season would produce a car shortage, hold up business and paralyze industry.

Coal dealers of Appleton could not handle 1,000 cars of coal in any one season of the year. They have not the yard or storage room. They must place some of it in bins of the consumer during the summer months.

To promote an even distribution, the dealers make early coal buyers a low price. In fact, the price is so low that it offers the consumer an actual investment. An early fuel purchase returns a dividend in money saved, that is greater than the interest paid on any bond or security.

An early buyer saves money. He is assured of good coal. He helps to prevent transportation congestions later in the season that might materially injure his business or the business or industry which employs him.

PICTURIZATION OF FAMOUS PLAY IS REPRESENTATION OF EVERYDAY FOLKS

Here you have a photoplay chock full of ordinary everyday people incidents and happenings. Here is a vivid cross section of our modern American life realistically transferred to the screen with the voice of young America ringing out clear and true. A prominent part is played by Esther Ralston of "Peter Pan" fame and recently seen here in the "Little French Girl." Constance Bennett who has played flapper roles with pronounced skill. Muriel Steelman, George Irving and Edward Peil Jr., are also featured. Directed by James Cruze of "Covered Wagon" fame, with care, understanding and skill, it transplants to the screen an average small town family real, human, everyday folks, hopes, loves, fears, and ambitions. There are no spectacular acts, no stagey thrills, no forced realism, just the simple drama, the poignant pathos of the wistful romance—all the joy and sorrow, all the laughter and tears that make up the ordinary lives of humanity's masses. Also latest international news reel, a Felix Cartoon reel and a Pathe two reel comedy, title to be announced later. Tuesday night has been designated as family night when the entire family will be admitted for price of two adult tickets.

to Hollywood, plays a powerful part in the Ince-First National photoplay, "Playing With Souls." In this tale of erring, parents Brook is cast as an irresponsible parent whose financial success has given him coldness and cynicism. In all his characterizations heretofore on the American screen Brook has been seen in sympathetic roles.

In later sequences of "Playing With Souls" he performs a remarkable transition, requiring subtle and subdued acting when he awakens to the urge of father love. Buster Collier, Jacqueline Logan, Mary Astor, Belle Bennett and a troupe of other able players fill the cast of this compelling offering.

ALICE CALHOUN IS THROWN FROM COACH BETWEEN HORSES

In making one of the scenes for "The Girl in His Room," the Alice Calhoun production which will be shown at the New Bijou Theater today and Tuesday, it was necessary for Alice Calhoun to travel from the studio to location in an old-fashioned stage coach with four horses—a picturesque thing belonging to the wild western days which still joins a bit of modern civilization, to a rough, uncultivated settlement back in the mountains.

As Alice was about to be seated high up beside the drivers, the horses gave a lurch and threw Alice head first before the back team and behind the front team. The driver was so frightened that he became as white as a sheet and motionless. There was a general panic among the players who were stunned for a moment and then rushed to the rescue. They grabbed Alice and got her to safety but the young star was hardly scratched. The wonder of the whole thing being that she was not trampled on. She was badly scared, however, but soon recovered her equilibrium and climbed up under the driver's seat and rode to location.

BROWN-CO. OWNERS HAVE "SPEED COPS"

George J. Cormier, highway commissioner of Brown-co, recently cautioned the motorcycle officers of that district to respect their positions and to conduct themselves as officers, not as speed cops. Quoting a bulletin from the Wisconsin Motorists association he told them that a speed cop is an unscrupulous person who races up and down a main highway, hides behind obstructions to pounce upon law abiding motorists and gleefully "hawl them out," and otherwise makes himself obnoxious.

A motorcycle officer, on the other hand, patrols his route in all weather, said Commissioner Cormier, and always seeks to be helpful to deserving motorists. He warns the fast drivers, hastens the laggard, and arrests the reckless speed demon. He is ready at all times to direct the driver who seeks his advice, and enforces the spirit of the law.

Mr. Cormier concluded by saying, "Brown-co wants motorcycle officers, not speed cops."

Hat Pins Are Passe Since Girls Bobbed Their Hair

Bobbed hair has put the hat pin into the discard, declare Appleton merchants. The close-fitting hat now so universally worn has no need of hat pins. There was a time when hats were of such a shape that they perched on top of the head and needed several hat pins to keep them in place. But that time is past.

It is not definitely known when hat pins first came into use. They probably did not come into general use until some time after the Civil war. Pictures at that time showed the bonnets tied with ribbons under the chin.

From the small plain black or white glass headed variety developed the fancy hat pin of gold, silver and metals of lesser value. They varied in size from very small heads to those that were more than two inches in diameter. Some had springs with a large ball suspended from the end. During the Spanish-American war, buttons cut from soldiers' uniforms were used for heads on the hat pins. The souvenir pins with enameled pictures of scenes or buildings were used at one time.

With the passing of the hat pin, women lost not only an ornamental and useful article to hold the hat in place, but a weapon of defense.

Today one seldom sees a hat pin, although it is certain a search would bring to light a dozen or more in every household. There is no demand for them, and the Appleton stores have not had them in stock for several years. Unless history repeats itself in hat styles and long hair becomes the style again, it is not likely that hat pins will ever again come into common use.

WON'T HAVE TO BUY NEW ARTERIAL SIGNS HERE

Arterial signs in Appleton comply with the uniformity law recently passed by the state legislature and signed by Governor Blaine, and therefore this city will not have to change them, according to city officials. M. W. Torjekson, secretary of the Wisconsin Highway commission, announced Monday that the commission soon will begin gathering information on road signs and markers in various localities of the state, preliminary to establishing uniformity in the markings. The highway commission is given authority to enforce the uniformity provision, with the privilege of suspending its order in the case of markers already in place for such a time as it may deem necessary.

START OUTLINE OF COURSES IN JUNIOR SCHOOLS

Pupils Register Their Preferences so School Work Can Be Organized

Seventh and eighth graders in the public schools of the city have filled out registration blanks which will be used in organizing Junior high school work in the fall. The question of how the junior high school work shall be regulated is important because it must necessarily be concerned with college preparatory work, business, general practical study, just as in senior high school. The fact that the students must pick their courses at a much earlier age, complicates the matter.

Three courses of study are offered to the students. They are the Latin course, the science course and the practical arts course. These divisions are made quite elastic so that students may include many of the subjects they desire in their plan of work. It has been found essential to decide, however, what the principal work will be in a pupil's upper school.

course, so that the end of senior high school will not find him with a muddled mass of uncorrelated knowledge.

The Latin course is in general the one a student should take if he is planning to go to college. If he intends to go to a university, a technical institution, a cultural institution of any kind, he will need to follow the arts course.

The science course is designed primarily for persons intending to enter the business field directly after leaving high school. Office work, or commercial work of any kind will be the goal of a student in this branch.

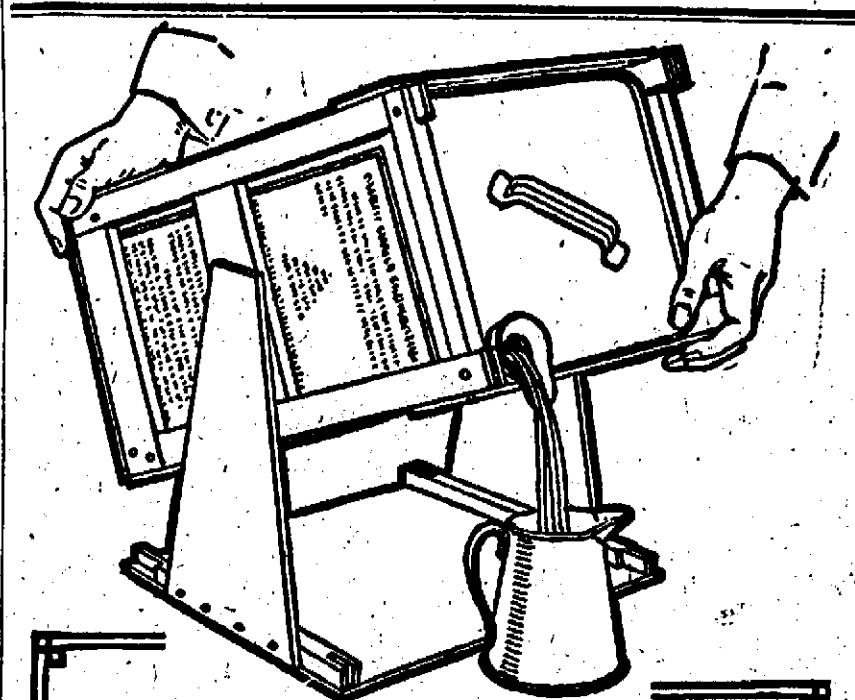

The practical arts course is more on the order of a vocational school curriculum, since for girls it teaches household arts and homemaking, and for boys, shop and factory work. It includes industrial and mechanical training.

None of these divisions is absolutely rigid. The registration is held only because the faculty and principals of the junior high schools need to find out the approximate number of students in each branch in order to facilitate work when school opens in the fall.

Eugene Rickert, route 6, Appleton, also enriched the court treasury when Officer Radtke arrested him Saturday noon for driving his car without a 1925 license. He paid $10 fine and $3.40 costs.

They will spend the day fishing, playing games and making large gaps in the supply of food and drink provided for their benefit. Sewers, pavements and all other workaday matters will be forgotten for this one day, but according to the committee for refreshments, Mark's camp will be no place for dyspeptics.

BURNING AUTO CALLS OUT FIRE DEPARTMENT

One burning automobile and another supposed to be on fire gave the fire department its only calls within the last week. One alarm was sounded at 9 o'clock Sunday morning when a car parked on N. Another call came in at 11:40 Sunday evening when a car owned by Richard Boya caught fire while it was on E. John-st. between S. Meade and S. Rankin-sts. Some damage was done before the blaze was extinguished.

NO FRAUD IN LAND DEAL, JURORS HOLD

After 35 minutes of deliberation a jury in municipal court Friday afternoon decided that Edward Wentzel had not been defrauded by August Kasten in a land deal on Nov. 15, 1921 and declared that Wentzel had no cause for action. The jury, which inspected the land in question Thursday morning, decided that the property was not infested with thistles or noxious weeds any more than is ordinarily the case. Wentzel accused Kasten of representing the land which he purchased to be ordinarily free of weeds when it was in fact full of them that he could not raise a good crop in three years. He was seeking to force Kasten to pay him $10,500, the difference between what he paid for the farm and what he believed it to be worth.

The jury's verdict was a complete exoneration of R. F. Shepherd, Appleton dealer, who was accused of having been in a conspiracy to sell the property.

THREE CARLOADS OF OIL ON CITY STREETS

Three carloads of oil already have been spread on the various streets included in the oiling program this year, and three more are expected to finish the job, according to R. F. Hackworthy, assistant street commissioner. Bennett-st. and Park-ave were to be oiled Monday.

Mr. Hackworthy has directed his crews to oil only one side of each street at a time in order to permit vehicles to pass while the operations are underway. Therefore several streets now are half oiled and will be completed as soon as possible.

Nine carloads of sand were expected here Monday to be spread on the streets after oiling. The crews used about 300 tons of sand last Thursday, when they finished oiling State-road.

THREE BITTEN BY VICIOUS DOGS

Canine Left to Guard Automobile Attacks Those Who Park Next to Machine

A dog owned by Patrick Ferguson, 524 E. South River-st., left in its master's automobile while parked at 323 E. College-ave Saturday afternoon did its duty of guarding the machine too well, for two men were bitten. They were Roy McCarter, 932 E. Washington-st., and August Plette, 206 E. McKinley-st. One other man, Florian Bruehl, 513 W. Spring-st., was a victim of a vicious dog.

McCarter and Plette both happened to park their cars beside that of Ferguson containing the dog. When they attempted to leave the dog began barking at them and in each case sprang at them. McCarter was bitten on both arms and Plette on the left arm between the elbow and shoulder. The police are investigating the circumstances and intend to prevent further trouble by the Ferguson canine.

Mr. Bruehl was bitten in the left leg during the weekend by a dog owned by A. W. Schaeuble, 517 N. Bates-st. It was necessary for him to have the injury attended to by a physician. The police ordered the dog tied up and kept under observation to determine whether it has developed rabies.

CANON TAKES FLING AT IMMORAL CHURCH MUSIC

York, Eng.—A great deal of church and chapel music is "beneath contempt and even immoral," and "appeals to all that is low," Canon Bell, precentor of York Minster, declared in an address on religion and music. "I believe God," he added, "does not want people to be so conceited as to think they can sing when they cannot. I believe we can play golf or cricket to the glory of God, but I do not believe it is any good trying to sing a song to the glory of God when we cannot sing at all."

MOTOR BOATING IS COMING BACK, MENASHAN SAYS

Less Danger and More Comfort in Driving a Boat Than in Driving a Car

Menasha—While the automobile craze has seriously affected "old dabbins," boating as a source of pleasure is holding its own, according to Andrew Lind, veteran boatbuilder of Fox river valley. In fact, it is coming back stronger than ever on the inland lakes of the state since the perfection of the outside or bar motor, said Mr. Lind.

These motors can be attached to any rowboat and have created an enormous demand for this particular kind of craft. The demand for sailboats of the smaller type which also was affected at one time by automobiles has returned and Mr. Lind now has three in his plant at the foot of Broad-st. nearing completion with orders for several others.

The motor launch was the hardest hit of any of the pleasure boats, but it is coming back, said Mr. Lind. He bases his prediction on the absence of dust, dirt and danger connected with boating compared with operating an automobile on a crowded highway.

Like nearly everything else boat material has doubled and tripled in price. Clear white pine which sold for $35 a thousand is now worth $130 and is very hard to get. Wisconsin cedar which a quarter of a century ago sold at $25 a thousand is now selling at $115 per thousand. Pacific coast cedar is somewhat cheaper.

Mr. Lind has been building boats for more than 27 years. He has the distinction of having built one of the first gasoline launches on Fox river and Lake Winnebago. It was known as the Andy Smith and is still in existence although just where Mr. Lind cannot recall. The owners were Mr. Lind, Andy Smith, Henry Schlichter and John Steinberg, all of Appleton. The boatbuilder had his first stop in a small frame building where the Appleton Y. M. C. A. now stands. It was here the Andy Smith was built. In later years Mr. Lind had his shop immediately east of the plant of the Fox

FRED OTTMAN DIES AFTER 4 YEAR ILLNESS

Menasha—Fred Ottman, 48, died Sunday at his home, 332 First-st after an illness of four years. He was born in the town of Harrison and had lived in Menasha for the last 21 years. At the time he was taken ill he was employed in the plant of the Menasha Wooden Ware company for whom he worked for about four years. Previous to that time he was employed by the Menasha Wood Split Pulley company for 12 years.

Mr. Ottman was a member of the Fraternal Reserve association and Holy Name Society of St. Mary church. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Harold and Howard, Menasha; four sisters, Mrs. Robert Henninger, Milwaukee; Mrs. Peter Schmaltz, Mrs. J. Haeleback, Harrison; Mrs. Paul Stumpf, Appleton; three brothers, John, Antigo; George, Milwaukee, and Joseph, Menasha.

RECIPES

Outer Leaves
Of Lettuce
May Be Used

To those who throw away the top leaves of celery, the green outer leaves of lettuce, who dislike spinach and refuse cabbage; this is especially addressed.

Appetite after all, is merely a matter of education. We do not eat celery tops because we have never eaten them. Their pungent taste is new to our tongues. Lettuce makes a more attractive appearance in our salads when crisp and blanched. So we throw away the outer leaves without a thought. We have always eaten the roots of the radish, turnip and other bulbous vegetables. And so we see no reason for endeavoring to utilize the tops in our daily menus.

It may require experiment, combined with ingenuity and subtle education of the family appetite, to install some of these things as staple articles of diet. But it can be done.

METHODS OF PREPARING
Combine celery tops with coarse outer stalks of the celery. Simmer 1 scant amount of water till tender. Remove lid from stew pan to permit complete evaporation of liquid. Season with butter, salt and pepper. Celery tops may be used as a substitute for lettuce in Waldorf, banana and vegetable "salade." Dressed with melted butter and combined with chopped peanuts they make excellently flavored sandwiches.

The outer leaves of lettuce may be bunched together and sliced into thin strips with a sharp knife or cut with scissors. So prepared it makes a foundation for any salad.

Scrape and cook young carrots in boiling salted water till tender. Cut in halves, lengthwise, roll in cracker crumbs, then in beaten eggs and crumbs again and fry in butter till a golden brown. Sprinkle with minced parsley and serve very hot.

Cabbage may now be had in quantities in the market, large or small heads, according to choice. Serve it one day in Cold Slaw—skipping a day—then serving it "Au Gratin," according to the following recipe, or possibly boiled with a ham.

Cook cabbage eight minutes in boiling water, chop in small pieces, put in greased baking dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover with white sauce and sprinkle, if desired with grated cheese. Mix cabbage and white sauce gently with a fork, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until crumbs are brown.

Cauliflower and onions "au gratin" are also delicious and certainly a change from the everyday, plain boiled vegetables.

Health Hints

FIGHTING GERMS

"Quite a bit of truth in what you say of people feeding themselves germs," Mr. Mann agreed with his wife.

"But what about these germs not being able to live out in the open air?"

"Well, most of them will live an hour or two at the least," she replied.

"And it does not take that long for them to be transferred in these days of modern living conditions."

"Incidentally, March is the worst time of the year for influenza and colds and pneumonia," Mr. Mann ventured.

"Probably the germs would not be able to get such a death grip on people if their systems were not run down by the hard, arduous living conditions of winter."

"There are two ways of fighting off disease. Keep germs out of your system, of course, and then by proper food, sleep, exercise and general care of the body make the system so strong that germs cannot get a hold."

"As for me, I am going down to see a doctor and see if I need toning up a little bit."

Adventures
Of The Twins

In The Muffin Man's Shop
The next place that Snitcher Snatch, the goblin, went to was Daddy Gander Town.

The Twins and Mister Whizz knew this because the white crow had told them.

Snitcher Snatch had stolen their aeroplane so they had to use magic. With magic shoes it is wonderful the places one can get to by just wishing.

For about two minutes and a half, they were there, right in Mrs. John's apple orchard, not far from the House-That-Jack-Built.

But there was no sign of Snitcher Snatch or his aeroplane anywhere.

"We'll have to go around and ask everybody if they have seen him," said Mister Whizz. "It is really most remarkable the way that scallawag can hide himself."

They walked down Pippin Hill and then along Brook Street, and on the corner they came to the Muffin Man's Shop.

There was a big sign there that said "Hot Cross Buns For Sale."

"Snitcher Snatch, has a sweet tooth—he may be here," said Mister Whizz. "Let's go in."

So they all went into the Muffin Man's shop and looked around.

But there was nobody there but fat Mrs. Spratt with her market basket. She had picked out a dozen doughnuts and half a dozen hot cross buns and four ice cream puffs and her basket was just about full.

The Muffin Man was counting out her change and the cash drawer was open.

"That comes to two shillings six pence," said the Muffin Man.

"Did you see Snitcher Snatch around here anywhere, Mister Muffin Man?" asked Nick, as they all walked in.

"What's that? The bad little goblin who stole the Sani Man's sleigh and one time?" cried Mrs. Spratt.

"What has he been doing now?" "He's stolen the gold snuff box that belonged to the Fairy Queen's uncle," said Nancy.

"And he's run off with my aeroplane," said Mister Whizz.

"The Lord Mayor should be told at once," cried the Muffin Man.

Nobody gave a long nose sticking out of a doorway in the back of the Muffin Man's shop.

And nobody saw the person with the long nose shake a few grains of something out on to his hand and blow it through the doorway.

Instantly the Muffin Man went.

"Achoo!" so hard that all the money flew out of his cash drawer and rolled out of his door and down the street.

And Mrs. Spratt went. "Achoo! School!" so hard that everyone of her doughnuts and buns and cream puffs flew out of the window and onto Mrs. Tweedle's roof.

And Nancy and Nick and Mister Whizz went "Achoo! Achoo! Achoo!" so hard that the person with the long nose went flying out the back door and turned three somersaults and landed in the street.

And some of the magic stuff spilled out of his snuff box (for, of course, you have guessed that it was Snitcher Snatch) and the wind blew it all over Daddy Gander Town. Then the fun began.

FOLLY ALWAYS EXACTING TOLL
FROM SOMEONE

BY CYNTHIA GREY

Erasmus long ago wrote a book in praise of Folly.

But Erasmus was not a man of the world. He was a scholar. And he shut himself up in the quiet cloisters of Oxford, far away from the frivolity of this world.

Beesides that, Folly has a greater kingdom than it had hundred of years ago when Erasmus lived and wrote.

Today, hardly an hour passes but somebody offers up a sacrifice to it. Here, for example, a French dancing girl stabs her partner because he stepped on her foot as they danced in a cabaret on the heights of Montmartre.

There a married woman elopes from a little New Jersey town with an absconding bank cashier.

Here a husband returns home. Her husband refuses, of course, to take her back. And Folly scores again.

Three dance-crazed girls in Toronto, Canada, coolly strangle the matron of a reform farm, in their desperate effort to escape from it to the Primrose path.

In Pueblo, Colorado, a 19-year-old girl is arrested for bootlegging.

And so it goes.

With motor cars, jazz, the "smartness" of drinking and smoking for women, this world is going around faster than ever it went before. Faster, and more crazily.

For the old values of behavior are gone . . . swept away by the on-rushing tide of modern thought and freedom.

APPLETON LOSES HARD GAME TO PLYMOUTH, 5-0

FLOOD, PLYMOUTH HURLER, ALLOWS 4 HITS FOR LOCALS

Papermakers Drop to Third in Loop Standings as Result of Loss

With Flood, easily the best hurler in the Eastern Wisconsin loop, in rare form, Appleton Fox River ball squad was tumbled out of a tie for second place in the loop Sunday afternoon by the Plymouth crew at the local diamond by a 5-0 score. Flood set the Papermakers slugging down with four safe blows, no two of which came in the same session. C. Tornow got credit for two local hits. Brockhouse, one, and Crowe one. Crowe hurled a nice game for the locals with only one bad inning, the first, in which three scores came over. Both crews supported their pitcher well with Plymouth fielders pulling off a number of spectacular catches to aid Flood. The big Plymouth hurler also shot a home run over the railroad tracks to help himself to the victory. Included in the Plymouth lineup were several old stars of the Sheboygan State League team. Peebles and Wamganman performed in the infield and Wilke in the center garden. Peebles was the heavy slugger for the winners with three hits in four attempts.

Four hits, including two doubles, and a fielder's choice started Crowe off on the wrong foot in the first frame and gave Plymouth three runs, enough to win the game. Flood's hour run raised another in the third and three more hits and an error brought over only one more in the eighth. C. Tornow, who clouted two drives in four bats for the losers, reached third in the eighth with two down but three batters were unable to drive him over the plate. Plymouth stole bases with ease on Brockhouse, who got his legs off too slow. In the eighth with the bases loaded and two down, Baetz cracked the ball to the centerfield fence but a Plymouth gardener picked it off to stop the rally.

Lineups were:
Plymouth—Strehlow, 1f; Peebles, ss; Wilke, cf; Wamganman, 3b; DeLong, 2b; Flood, p; Koehler, rf; Pikel, c; Elliot, 1b.
Appleton—Schultz, 3b; Goshka, ss; C. Tornow, 2b; Klundt, 1f; Radtke, rf; Baetz, cf; Bayer, 1b; Brockhouse, c; Crowe, p; H. J. Tornow, 1b; Brockhouse in 9th.

Score
Plymouth, 5; Appleton, 0.
Batteries: Flood and Pikel; Crowe and Brockhouse. Umpire—Below, Oaklough.

BROOK'S 9TH HOMER GIVES CUB'S WIN

Chicago—Mandy Brooks lifted a home run into the left field bleachers in the ninth inning out at Cub park Sunday, and withereth beat the Phils, 3 to 2. The situation when Brooks broke up the party met all the demands of fiction—Sparky Adams on second, two out, and an all but perfect ball game in its final inning.

Mr. Brooks was the important character of the happenings, though Percy Leas Jones and Art Decatur were of scarcely less import. Mandy not only hit that tremendously satisfying pop in the ninth, but he also got a single in the fifth that was the first hit made off the unfortunate Decatur, and which shortly developed into the first Cub run. Without Brooks the Cubs would have been in a rather insipid state.

Brooks now has hit nine home runs in the interval since the Cubs returned home on May 31, only a few days after the club paid $25,000 and two players to Columbus for him.

Only eight hits were made during the game. Jones yielding three against Decatur's five.

AL GOULD WINS BALL GAME FOR WAUSAU

Rhineland—The Wausau Lumberjacks defeated Rhineland here Sunday in a ninth inning rally, scoring two runs on combination of hits and errors. The score was 5 to 4. Johnson, Rhineland pitcher, allowed five hits, while Gould for Wausau was touched up for nine. Wilson, first sacker for the Lumberjacks, got three of the hits scored by his team, one home run, a two bagger and a single.

LEGION-KIWANIS GAME TO BE REAL BATTLE

The Legion squad of the Lark loop, conquerors of the Iowa Thursday night battle, will face another hard foe on Tuesday at Jones park when the speedy Kiwanis crew goes into action against the loop leaders. The Kiwanians got started last week and won their first game to knock the Rotarians out of second place, and are showing real stuff. In their last meeting the Legion squad just squeezed out a victory, in the final frames and the Kiwanians are after a win. Batteries: Kiwanis—Schultz and Basing; Legion—Cartier and C. Baetz.

YALE SQUAD SCORED IN ALL 15 EVENTS

In the recent dual meet with Harvard, Yale scored in every one of its 15 events. The Blue got slams in two of them, the 220-yard dash and broad jump. It had the narrowest squeak in the shot put, getting but half a point.

Olympics Lead To Loose Living--Dutch Lawmakers

By Associated Press
The Hague, Holland—Holland has rejected a proposal to grant financial support to the 1928 Olympic Games, scheduled to be held at Amsterdam. In opposing the measure the Rev. Dr. Kersten, an extreme Calvinist deputy, voicing the sentiments of a majority of the second chamber of the States General, quoted as follows from St. Paul's epistle to Timothy: "For bodily exercise profiteth little, but godliness is profitable unto all things." The vote was 45 against and 35 for the project.

CARL MAYS IS SAD; CAN'T HURL SUB BALL

Carl Mays is very much depressed over his enforced idleness and his inability to get into the lineup to help out his team. His trouble has been diagnosed as the straining of a ligament in one side of his back muscles. He can throw an overhand ball without pain, but can not put his full power into his celebrated underhand delivery. The doctors tell him that a complete rest will cure him in a comparatively short time, but it is hard for Carl to remain idle.

EHMKE APPEARS TO HAVE STRUCK REAL FORM NOW

Big Howard's Work Begins to Show Stuff Which Brought Him Into Limelight

Boston—Howard Ehmke, star pitcher of the Red Sox, seems to have hit his real stride again. After being ill during the early weeks of the campaign, the slim boy returned to the game only to get away poorly. No doubt he wasn't in shape following his long seige with the doctors.

In his last few starts, Ehmke has displayed the brand of hurling which has long been noted for. Over a two weeks' stretch he turned in four straight victories for the lowest ranking team in the big leagues. In most of them, too, he held the opposition to a few runs and hits. The other day he hooked up in a pitchers' battle with Robertson of the White Sox, winning 2 to 1, each gunner allowing but five safeties.

In his last two seasons Ehmke has been up near the top of the heap in the matter of triumphs, bagging 20 wins two years ago and 19 last season. That's pretty good hurling for a consistently poor team.

If the tall lad keeps up the pace he started he bids fair to even excel his 1923 and 1924 performances this campaign.

And were Ehmke with a strong outfit like the Athletics, there is no telling how many victories he'd turn in during a season's activities.

SKIDDING BREWERS SIGN STATE HURLER

Milwaukee—The skidding Brewers were reinforced Friday at Louisville when Jack (Lefty) Finerman, a Rhinehander southpaw, reported to Manager Clark. Finerman has won all but twelve games of independent ball in the last three years and last fall was picked up by the Cleveland club, which in turn sent him to Kansas City this spring. After a short trial in the training camp the Blues turned him over to Springfield. He was there long enough to defeat Decatur, 3 to 2, but then returned home, what he believed to be a more important field. Dukes, the former Marquette star, who has played on the same team with Lefty for several years, has been warm in his praise for Finerman for over a year and insists that all he needs is a real chance.

BADGERS RATED AS "DARKHORSE" IN COLLEGE RACE

Dad Vail Always Non-committal, Smiles for First Time After Saturday Trial

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Twenty-four hours before the first race over the famous Hudson river course, the University of Wisconsin entries were in the country, resting for the terrific efforts that they will expend to rowing title from the Washington commit. Dad Vail, never willing to commit himself to any positive hope, is smiling.

While the Wisconsin crew are not favorites, they are rated as the dark horse of the race. No one except the coach and the members of the squad know what the oarsmen have accomplished. Vail has announced no definite time for any of the trials he has sent the men through and the only way in which the critics have been able to gauge their strength has been to watch the boats in action.

The squad is in good condition. Vail always has excelled in bringing his men to the pink on the day of the race. The last practice row was held Saturday evening when Dad gave the varsity and freshmen a chance to drill on starts. After the return to the hotel, everyone was tucked in bed soon after dark and at an early hour this morning the men left the city for unknown parts to relax and rest under the watchful eye of the coach.

Wisconsin's shell is rigged for rough water and if the Hudson does kick up tomorrow, their stock will rise considerably.

The Navy is backed against the flotsam under any water conditions. They, like Wisconsin, are accustomed to white caps. They will be rowing in the heaviest and widest shell on the river, a shell built to maintain an even keel when frailer crafts will stumble. And in the boat are eight of the most powerful backs that have ever bent an oar under Dick Glendon, Jr. Some question that the men have the stroke for row the trying Glendon power for four miles. This is worth a smile. The Midshipmen have everything a winning crew should have a good stroke oar, a strong No. 7 man and six other men of undeniable ability.

The Navy rivals favorite because of its evident winning qualities, but at that point, reason fails. Cornell, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Columbia may spring a surprise and this holds good for Washington and Wisconsin.

SENATORS TRADE TWO FOR HANK SEVEREID

Washington—George. Mogridge, veteran southpaw pitcher, and Walter Hargrave, catcher, have been traded by the Washington club to the St. Louis Browns for their veteran catcher, Henry (Hank) R. Severeid. The deal, announced by Manager Harris of the Senators, was arranged during the series this week between the two clubs.

Mogridge was one of the mainstays of the Washington pitching staff during the team's climb to the baseball championship last year and while his record this season has not equaled that of last, his departure came as a complete surprise to local fandom. Hargrave started his third season with the Senators this year and has been used chiefly as a pinch hitter. Manager Harris said he believed the acquisition of Severeid would greatly strengthen his team by providing an experienced catcher to take some of the burdens from Ruel, who last year caught nearly every game for the Senators and plainly showed the effects of overwork toward the end of the season.

Sam Langford, Through With Ring, Has Hard Time

Chicago—It always happens thus to champions who live by the brawn. And dusky, squat Sam Langford is no exception to the rule.

Ten years ago they crowned him in the arena. He was one of fistiana's wearers of the purple. His mighty fists smashed on to fame and victory. And now he has come back here to this port of ex-champions to die. Today Sam is content with picking up some small change as a shadow boxer and instructor in a Loop gymnasium.

He says he is broke and would sell his memoirs for money after the manner of British cabinet members. Fame hasn't done much for Sam. It gouged one of his eyes from his head and turned the other quite blind.

He looks nothing like a champion now. But he could very easily have been a champion or at least the remains of one. When glory once called during the days when he was champion of Mexico, Sam is now content to keep his stomach satisfied and life alive.

His rise and fall he keeps to himself. But the detailed reasons back of it are on sale for as little as $100. In general, says Sam, he was "done for by wine and women."

He leaves out song. Perhaps there was none. Leastwise it has been a long time since he heard music sweet enough to lead him astray.

Sam now longs only for one tune. He would like an encore to the jingle of hard coin.

His great pride is the fact that he was born in Boston.

"I'm an Irish nigger," he says. "Born in the top of Boston."

"Can't fight no moah," he says. "How about money boss, for enough words for a book?"

In memory, Sam still hears the shouts of the multitudes. His fists clasp and unclasp and his one partially good eye blinks and squints. The other one is about shut and the eyelid droops over the empty socket.

By coincidence, Chicago has become the port of last call for fighters of the blood like Sam Langford.

Jack Johnson also is here, a demigod of the negro quarter and does some preaching on the side.

Sam and Jack share between them this admiration which is not what they want but better than none.

"I'd a been fighting yet if I had watched my step," says Sam.

"But I had a good time while it lasted. Why worry?"

"Now boss, if you want to hear more you'll have to pay."

"I've got to capitalize on what I've got left."

"The story of Sam Langford for $200. What you say, boss, to a deal?"

From championship to this, and so it goes for those who live by the brawn. There is nothing left when that is gone.

Sam squints in the sunlight and dreams of the days when his fists crashed through to front-page space and there was much wine and "girl friends."

Now there is nothing.

Now there is nothing.

Now there is nothing.

Now there is nothing.

ANOTHER YANKEE WIN STREAK ENDS WITH ONLY 2 WINS

Giants With Frisch in Lineup Win in N. L.; Senators Lose to Tribe in A. L.

New York—The tenth winning streak of the Yankees this season has ended like the other nine. A pair of triumphs has been the first for consecutive victories of the club.

Although the White Sox were easily subdued in two straight games by the Hughmen Sunday, Chicago pounded three Yankees pitchers for a 9 to 2 decision.

Smarting under two defeats from the Senators, the Indians turned the tables and won 7 to 5.

Captain Frank Frisch returned to the Giants lineup, for the first time since a finger was broken May 16, and with Jack Scott in the box again, the National League leaders disposed of the Reds, 4 to 3, and took the series, three games to two.

The Boston Braves pulled out with an even break in their four game stay in St. Louis by taking the final number 7 to 2.

Chicago romped away with a 3 to 3 victory over the Phillies in the ninth inning. Brook's circuit drive with a runner on base ending the contest.

Money Well Spent

"We want our money's worth"

That's a universal demand in this country. The average American doesn't continue to patronize an establishment where he feels he hasn't received what was coming to him. There are too many other good stores or hotels or restaurants where he can get value received.

The Post-Crescent's Classified Section offers wonderful opportunities for the people of this city to get their money's worth.

The few lines for which the advertiser pays a very small sum are read by thousands of prospective buyers. It costs the advertiser only the merest fraction of a cent to send his message to each individual reader. Where can you get a better investment than that?

If you haven't learned the great value of classified advertising as a sales medium-start learning now. Call 543 and ask for an ad-taker!

COLLAR AGAIN IS ELECTED HEAD OF RURAL CARRIERS

Outagamie-co Association Meets Here to Discuss Mail Delivery Problems

Barney Collar of Hortonville was re-elected president of the Outagamie-co Rural Mail Carriers association at the annual meeting and outing at Allie's park Sunday. The picnic was attended by more than 50 carriers, substitutes, their wives and families. Other officers re-elected were Earl Ruppert, Kaukauna, vice president, and Nathan Schauer, Black Creek, treasurer. William Oaks of Shiocton was elected secretary in place of H. Heugel of that city, who vacated the position when he left the association to become assistant postmaster at Seymour. Joseph Tennie of Appleton was chosen delegate to the state convention of rural carriers to be held at Beaver Dam in August.

After the regular meeting of the association, the service relations council went into session. This council consists of postmaster, clerks and carriers of third and fourth class post offices.

The picnic was attended by members and their families from Kaukauna, Seymour, Black Creek, Shiocton, Hortonville, Little Chute and Appleton. Various problems were discussed, among them the question of shelter for carriers near the postoffice.

It was brought out that in several parts of the country no suitable shelter is provided where the rural carriers can park their vehicles while routing their mail. This is a real hardship, especially in the winter when it often is necessary to use horses in stead of automobiles.

It was the consensus of opinion of the carriers that all roads should be patrolled throughout the whole year. And brush along the roadsides should be cleared away to allow the carriers to approach the boxes. United States flags should be carried on carriers' vehicles, and retired carriers should receive more liberal pensions, the carriers decided. Inasmuch as the pension fund is reaching greater proportion each year, the carriers believe that a more adequate allowance should be given. Other problems also were discussed, but most of the day was devoted to amusements.

GERMAN BEGGARS GROUP RESIDENCES BY SIGNS

By Associated Press
Frankfort—The professional beggars of Germany have a universal sign language by which one member of the fraternity tips off to another whether a given house is worth canvassing or not. The sign is scratched on the door in an unobtrusive manner, so that few families are aware that they have been classified by expert alms receivers.

A plain circle means "here you'll get money." A circle divided into four equal parts by intersecting lines means "these people will give you something to eat." If the circle is intersected by two arrows, the beggar is advised to "beat it; there's danger in store for you." Three lines drawn horizontally and intersected by four lines drawn vertically is a warning: "Be careful; the owner of this house will call the police." A wavy line means "nothing doing." The rude drawing of a shovel warns the beggar that "without work you won't get anything here."

Peoples who still hunt for nearly all their food are the bushmen of Africa, the pygmies of Congo, the Eskimos and the tribes in the Malayan forests.

TEACHERS IN ICY NORTH DREAM OF SUNNY ISLES

Honolulu — The influx of applications of mainland teachers for positions in the Hawaiian schools this year is growing daily into proportions that lead Superintendent W. E. Givens, of the department of public instruction, to predict that the number will exceed that of last year, when there were 5,000 applications from mainland teachers for 125 vacancies.

There will be only about 100 vacancies this year and preference will be given as in the past to graduates of the territorial normal school or the University of Hawaii.

According to school authorities, the so-called lure of the South Seas is very potent upon teachers, thousands of whom apply annually for the comparatively few vacancies that occur in the department's staffs.

BRITISH MILLS GET RAW COTTON FROM TURK AREA

Asia Minor Fields Once Famous Before America's Day Are Thriving Again

By Associated Press
Liverpool—The arrival here of 1,000 bales of cotton from the port of Mersina, in Asia Minor, marks the opening of a new source of cotton supply to the spinning mills of Lancashire.

It will be a new source in the sense of constituting an addition to the centers which now feed Lancashire with raw cotton, says the Westminster Gazette, but curiously enough it was from this quarter of the Turkish empire that Britain first began to draw her cotton supplies nearly four centuries ago. They were the mainstay of cotton spinning in England before the days of Arkwright, and before cotton cultivation in America assumed serious proportions.

A spinning factory has been laid down at Adana, the headquarters of one of the three cultivating areas, and for which the port of Mersina is a natural outlet. The two other areas are the hinterland of Smyrna and the valley of Sakaria. Adana can produce an annual crop of 100,000 bales; her potentiality is described as a minimum of 300,000 bales to a maximum of two millions.

M. Husni, a member of a Manchester cotton firm, has expressed the view that the Smyrna crop would sell at pass price (middling) and the American-Egyptian hybrid crop of Adana would be worth more than pass price.

"The classification of this cotton in a business and scientific way," he said, "is receiving very careful attention and next year's crop will be offered on rigidly defined types."

STAID BRITONS FALL FOR MARK TWAIN CORNCOB

London—The cheapest pipe on sale today in London, the city which has perhaps two or three times as many pipe smokers as any other city in the world, is the old-fashioned corn-cob pipe from Missouri, which was given international prominence by Mark Twain. The corn-cob pipe here retails at 4 to 6 cents each, but even at that can scarcely be considered as having made any noticeable inroads upon the British pipe industry.

In fact, it may be said that the corn-cob pipe is considered more of a freak than anything else, and is bought chiefly by Americans, as a reminder of old corn-cob days back home, and by a few Britons who have lived at intervals in the west or middle west when corn-cobs were in their prime.

Pipe dealers say here that the corn-cob will never become really popular in London, despite the low cost, because of the fact that it does not last any length of time. The Englishmen are always eager to try a new pipe, says the dealers, but they prefer hard wood ones, and in buying a new pipe they endeavor to get one which will last a year or two, or longer.

fellows in themselves," Dr. Brown writes in the publication, "we do not wish to be reminded of them, and when three such firms blather on in one magazine, it is in danger of becoming the most depressing of journals. I would rather think about living, and wish the undertakers would join the doctors and dentists in refraining from advertisements."

During recent tests it was found that the average time elapsing between the sending and receiving of a telegram is 40 minutes in the British Isles.

The shopping public is assured that he will give the same interested attention to supplying its needs that he has given to it while living here.
